Municipalities Newfoundland and Labrador launches new logo, website

St. John's — Municipalities Newfoundland and Labrador (MNL) launched a new logo and website Thursday with the aim of providing a better user experience and communication for the membership.

MNL president Harry Hallett said the initiatives put a stronger focus on people and the opportunities available in municipalities.

"We have plenty of projects and initiatives that our people work hard on everyday," Hallett said.

"Our place represents our communities and province and our potential is what we can achieve if we work together."

Combined with the fresh colours and look of the logo, the new website also includes such features as the MNL electronic newsletter, events, updates and resources from MNL programs, including information on economic development, the Tidy Towns program, plus a complete municipal directory.

The new MNL website can be viewed at www.municipalitiesnl.com.
